

INDEX.

raws up a note respecting the affairs of enice, ib.; preserves it from pillage, 64; sues a manifesto, 65; intercepts a letter from Francis II., ib.; his superiority in art, 67; angry at the rumors respecting arnot and Berthier, 68; his opinion of erthier, ib.; his affection for Eugene eauharnais, 69; draws up a letter to be sent to the Emperor of Austria, 75; his friendship for Desaix, 76; advice to the Directory, 78; letter to him, ib.; his re-aest to retire from the service, ib.; determines to march upon Paris, 79; desirous of becoming one of the Directory, 80; takes General Augereau his confidant, L; sends his aide-de-camp to Paris, 82; is letters to the Directory, *&., 84, 93; masons for selecting Augereau, 82; for electing Bernadotte, 83; letters to, 83 t seq.; from Augereau, 83; from Bernadotte, 84; his joy at the result of the 18th 'ructidor, 86; his letter to General Augereau, 87; his letter to the Directory, ! >. remark concerning General Clarke, 8; anger at his sister Eliza's marriage, 9; her letter to him, ib.; letter from the Emperor of Austria to, 90; his ideas of the treaty of peace, 92; his suspicion of Jottot, 94; offers his resignation, 96; Jottot's letter to, ib.; determines to make peace, 98; disregards his instructions, 100; presents from the Emperor of Austria to, ib.; comparisons of his conduct, 101; reason for his quitting Milan, 103; sends the flag of the army of Italy to the Directory, ib.; his promises to the authorities of Mantua, 104; remarks respecting, ib.; surveys the field of Morat, 105; offended at the behavior of M. de Comminges, 106; his arrival in Paris, 106; procures the erasure of Bourrienne's name from the list of emigrants, 107; his rigid administration, 108; his affection for his daughter-in-law, ib.; preparations at the Luxembourg for his reception, 109; speech of, 110; complimented by the Directory, ib.; banquet given to him, ib.; respect paid to, by the managers of the theatres, 111; named a Member of the Institute of the class of Sciences and Letters, 112; his letter to the president, 113; wishes to be made a Director, ib.; his ambition, ib.; leaves Paris, 115; his projected invasion of England, ib.; abandons it, 116; letter concerning his projected expedition to the Nile, ib.; sends Pompadour to inspect the ports of the Levant, LIT; his exertions in the expedition against Malta, ib.; projects an expedition to the East, 118; appointed General-in-Chief of the army in the East, 119; his directions to Bourrienne, 120; forms a camp library, ib.; his orthographical blunders, 121; affair with Bernadotte, 122; letter to Admiral Brueys, ib.; speech to his soldiers, 123; his affection for his wife, ib.; letter to the Military Commissioners of the 9th division, 124; instance of his kindness, ib.; arrives at Malta, 126; his praise of General Baraguay d'Hilliers, ib.; his humanity, 127; quits Malta, ib.; his conversations on board the Orient, 128; anecdote of him, 129; propositions discussed, 130; instance of his great humanity, 131; dictates a proclamation, 132; arrives at Alexandria, 134; resolves to disembark, ib.; his answer to Admiral Brueys, 135; marches on Alexandria, ib.; captures that city, ib.; directs the march of the army across the Bohairah, 136; his description of the misery endured by the French troops, ib.; leaves Alexandria for Damanhour, 138; establishes headquarters at the residence of a sheik, 139; his rage at an attack of the Arabs, 140; battle of Chebreisse, 141; forces the Mamelukes to retire, ib.; establishes headquarters at the house of Elfy Bey, 143; battle of the Pyramids, ib.; enters Cairo, ib.; attends to the civil and military organization of the country, ib.; letter to his brother Joseph, 144; his plan of colonization, ib.; orders published by, 145; his engagement with Ibrahim Bey, 146; anecdote of, 147, n.; distressed at the catastrophe of Aboukir, 148; plans of, ib.; censures the Directory, 149; recovers his fortitude, ib.; establishes an Institute at Cairo, 151; present at the opening of the dyke of the canal of Cairo, 152; attends the festival of the birth of Mahomet, ib.; false assertions respecting him, 153; his prudent respect for the Mahometan religion, ib.; expressions respecting his alleged conversion, ib.; his Turkish dress, 155; seeks the friendship of the Pasha of Acre, ib.; his intimacy with Madame Fourcay, 157; endeavors to surprise the Egyptians by M. Berthollet's experiments, 158; revolt of Cairo, 159; his orders to Sulkowsky, 160; suppresses the revolution, 160; his projected expedition to Syria, 163; letter to Tippoo Saib, ib.; departs for Suez, 164; inspects the town of Suez, ib.; passage of the Red Sea, 165, 166, n.; visits the "Wells of